Awake!

We just finished reading a paper from a dear friend who was talking about awaking to the Lord's voice. At our last meeting Monday morning we were into all the scriptures on AWAKE.

This is what He is doing in our midst. There is much admonishing, rebuking, edifying, going on as the grave clothes must be taken off by people other than the one whose grave clothes are not needed anymore. This can only be done in a tightly knit community the likes of which I feel will be springing up all over America as we get back to our roots. If people are really seeking God He will form a community which is Christ centered: much like He led thousands to be baptized by John the Baptist, much like He put into the hearts of the children of Israel to leave Egypt.

The human race has never been called to awaken until now. I am talking about the awake that has to do with the resurrection. The awake that has to do with becoming a life-giving spirit and leaving behind the cocoon called the living soul. The awake that is a new creation birthed by the Father. We have only had stirrings of life in the womb. These were called revivals, but we have never had hell give up its dead and had death put under foot.

We can have all the revelation, all the right protocol, all things in order but if we are not filled with charity, which is the capstone of our profession, we are nothing but a dead empty shell called the first Adam. We can prophesy great words and predict events, but if we have not a life giving spirit, our words are as dust that brings no life to the recipient. I may stir the soul but it does nothing for the spirit. Anything that smells of the church age from our meetings to our hymns to our going to church, will have the stench of death upon it, for the Kingdom of God has nothing to do with the womb any more than a baby has anything to do with the womb once it is born.

My dear little children, do you get a glimpse of the magnitude of the change we must all go through?? For did He not say, "We will not all sleep, but we will all be changed"? The alarm is sounding. Are you hearing it or are you among those who think they are already awake? As Piecemakers, the church, goes, so goes the rest of the world.
